Q2A.

Due to Tory facing a four-week trial in the county court, it is implied that Tory has been charged with an indictable offence. This is due to the fact that summary offences cannot go to trial as they are only able to be heard summarily by a magistrate in the Magistrates Court, not the County Court where Tory's trial is being held

Q2B.

As a persons accused of a crime, Tory is entitled to the right to be tried without unreasonable delay. This right entails that the trial of any accused must start within a timeframe that is not considered unreasonable.

One purpose of a committal proceeding is to determine if there is enough evidence to support a conviction.

Q4.

One reason a sentence indication may not be appropriate may be that the accused already intends to plead guilty. If this is the case,
